1. Visitors to an amusement park next to this location are entertained by the sight of Spongebob being force-fed lima beans. A burglar that enters this building is set on fire when a bucket of gasoline falls from the rafters. A party at this location features large jugs of water worn as hats, a pie with a can of peas in it, and a black Q covered in spikes and barbs. A poetry recital here consists entirely of Gary meowing. Squidward ends up in the future after he spends two thousand years frozen in a room near the back of this building. This place is overrun by five busloads of hungry anchovies until Spongebob makes enough food for all of them. For 10 points, name this restaurant, the home of the Krabby Patty.

ANSWER: The Krusty Krab (anti-prompt on “Krabby Land”)

2. A character investigating a crime involving one of these animals feels that he’s so close to solving the crime that he can almost taste it, and then slowly licks a yellow sponge-shaped popsicle. As a reward for catching one of these animals, the crew of a boat is promised the only remaining sandwich on the boat. One of these animals is raised by a character that spends his entire time at work watching a TV show where a guy gets hit in the head by a coconut. One of these animals becomes agitated when Spongebob throws a sea peanut at it during the Bikini Bottom Zoo’s annual Free Day. One of them eats Mr. Krabs’s one millionth dollar; another is a baby that Spongebob and Patrick raise together. For 10 points, name these pearl-producing animals.

ANSWER: clams (or giant clams; or oysters; or scallops; or bivalves; or obvious equivalents)

3. Two friends argue over whether someone who earned this privilege was bald or had a shaved head. When a robot suggests a way to earn this privilege, those friends ask why the robot never helps them with their problems. Spongebob tries to gain this status by wearing a rainbow-colored afro. He ultimately succeeds at it when he insultingly calls Patrick “tubby,” causing Patrick to beat himself up. Sandy does it by tearing out another character’s “MOM” tattoo and putting it back on upside-down, so that it reads “WOW.” Another character earns this privilege when he says that he had a bowl of nails that morning without any milk. Spongebob schemes to gain this status while waiting at Weenie Hut Juniors. For 10 points, identify this privilege earned by being tough enough.

ANSWER: entering the Salty Spitoon (or obvious equivalents)

4. A crowd gathers to watch a fight at this location, but disperse when they see that the fighters are just flailing their arms around without actually hitting each other. In a supply closet at this facility, a single lit lightbulb hangs directly above a tall stack of spare lightbulbs. During Patrick’s first visit to this building, he repeatedly flicks a light on and off and yells “Life! Death! Life! Death!” While spending his day here, Spongebob whispers to Patrick that “twenty-five” is funnier than “twenty-four.” An ongoing project at this institution is an egg named Roger. A newcomer to this place is a flounder named Flatts that threatens to kick Spongebob’s butt. For 10 points, name this educational institution where Spongebob learns to drive.

ANSWER: Mrs. Puff’s Boating School (prompt on “school”)

5. When Spongebob suggests launching a surprise attack against this character, Patrick wonders if it's this character's birthday. This character completely revives itself despite being slammed against a rock and having all but one of its arms destroyed by Spongebob. This character's attacks elicit such responses as "Finland!" and "Where's the leak, ma'am?" Spongebob figures out how to defeat this character after it steps on a sheet of paper. This character is created with the same method used to birth a jellyfish, a mustache, an imitation of Squidward, and a dollar bill attached to a string, using a tool dropped by an artist at sea. For 10 points, name this crudely-drawn imitation of Spongebob sketched with a magic pencil.

ANSWER: Doodlebob (or Doodleboy)

6. While fleeing from this character, Spongebob arranges two objects to create a necklace that can read "S for Spongebob." A discussion about this character is interrupted by a hook-handed man in a raincoat asking if there's a bathroom. Spongebob tries to dissuade a hunt for this character by explaining that a paper clip and a piece of string are Sandy's tail. Sandy goes into a cave and wrestles with what she thinks is this character, but realizes that she was wrestling its tongue, and that the entire cave is this character's mouth. Patrick suggests protecting themselves from this character by taking Bikini Bottom and pushing it somewhere else. For 10 points, name this big, scary, and pink annelid.

ANSWER: the Alaskan Bull Worm (prompt on "worm")

7. When confronted by this character, Spongebob confesses that he uses Squidward's clarinet to unclog his toilet. Upon seeing this character standing across the street, Spongebob feels touched because he thinks it's Squidward in disguise. Walls that ooze green slime do not signal the arrival of this character. On Tuesday nights, this character arrives at the Krusty Krab on a bus to seek his horrible vengeance. He turns out to be a guy with a big nose who is carrying his own spatula and looking for a job application. An omen of this character is later attributed to Nosferatu. His appearance is foreshadowed by a ringing phone with nobody to answer and lights that flicker on and off. For 10 points, name this character who is neither the Trash-Ringing Masher, nor the Slash-Bringing Hasher.

ANSWER: the Hash Slinging Slasher

8. A thief that steals this object believes his punishers will nibble on his innards, eat his brain, and leave his body for the buzzards, but is told "that's disgusting." While searching for this item, that character remembers that licking doorknobs is illegal on other planets, and watches Squidward laying flowers at a grave for his "hopes and dreams." Mr. Krabs tries to obtain this object by offering three similar ones equipped with an air conditioner, a juicer, and the label "Foxy Grandpa." An owner of this object is told that that this item makes him look like a girl. Various buyers initially offer up to one million dollars for this object at a yard sale. A floating shopping list convinces Spongebob to return this object. For 10 points, identify this possession of Smitty Werbenjagermanjensen, who was number one.

ANSWER: the soda-drink hat (or the hat labelled number one before "number one"; or Smitty Werbenjagermanjensen's hat before "Smitty Werbenjagermanjensen"; or Smitty Werbenmanjensen's hat before "Smitty Werbenjagermanjensen"; or obvious equivalents; prompt on "hat"; prompt on "Hatty"; prompt on "bubble-blowing hat")

9. After this task is complete, Patrick tries to clean a dirtied object by smashing a computer against it because "We're not cavemen – we have technology!" The mental preparation for this job takes so long that Patrick runs out of time cards. Improperly completing this project bears the threat of its participants' buttocks being cut off and mounted over a fireplace. A series of picture frames stacked atop each other are used to hide a dollar bill soiled during this task. Near the start of this assignment, Spongebob creates a giant bubble and wonders what could be worse, and Patrick responds by creating a second giant bubble. This job is assigned using material that comes off with saliva. For 10 points, identify this project which results in the renovation of the interior of Mr. Krabs's house.

ANSWER: painting Mr. Krabs's house (or obvious equivalents; or painting after "Mr. Krabs's house"; prompt on "renovating," "refurbishing," "decorating," etc.; anti-prompt on "cleaning Mr. Krabs's first dollar")

10. Spongebob is inspired to “stretch the truth” in regards to doing this task after seeing a billboard for “delicious” barnacle chips. To expedite this process, Spongebob and Patrick buy many orange bags, and then buy many red bags to carry the orange bags. Patrick fails at this activity after he intently stares at one character, zooming his eyes in and out to “focus”; earlier he tells another character “I love you” and has the door slammed in his face. A scammer who claims to have glass bones and paper skin is able to do this in large amounts to Spongebob and Patrick. When this job is done, Spongebob and Patrick go on a double date with an old woman and her mother, a rotting spine in a wheelchair. For 10 points, identify this activity which allows Spongebob and Patrick to become entrepreneurs.
ANSWER: selling chocolate (do not accept “buying chocolate”)

11. Spongebob gathers support for the leader of this group by comparing him to the fireman that rescued Evelyn’s little Jimmy, or the guy in an ambulance that revived Larry after he took too many canning pills. Two members of this group fly into the air and crash into a blimp. Members of this organization abruptly stop arguing and walk away as friends when the clock hits 10 PM. A member of this group insults Mr. Krabs’s “big, meaty claws.” During this organization’s first meeting, Patrick and Sandy get in a fight that ends with Patrick saying “Whoever’s the owner of the white Sedan, you left your lights on.” At the first meeting of this group, Patrick asks, “Is mayonnaise an instrument?” For 10 points, identify this musical group which performs “Sweet Victory” at the Bubble Bowl.
ANSWER: Bikini Bottom marching band (or Bikini Bottom Super Band; or obvious equivalents)

12. The central object in this quest creates conflict between the ideologies of “all for one” and “one for all.” This adventure begins next to a large stalk of seaweed that has three leaves until Mr. Krabs plucks one of them off. During this quest, Mr. Krabs travels west instead of east because Patrick thought he said to go “weast.” Spongebob and Patrick realize that the map used for this mission is just a game board taped to a piece of paper. For completing this quest, Spongebob and Patrick are rewarded with two gold doubloons. For 10 points, identify this quest which ends in the exhuming of a valuable property that belongs to a spooky ghost pirate.
ANSWER: searching for the Flying Dutchman’s treasure (accept obvious equivalents)

13. Spongebob’s defense of this character causes various onlookers to bring up such childhood memories as Funny Muffler, Jerky Pal, Booboo Keys, and Snake Eyes. A crowd angrily pushes over a lifeguard chair after this character is accused of poisoning their water supply, burning their crops, and delivering a plague unto their houses. At the Krusty Krab, Squidward is forced to drink shampoo to make sure it’s safe for this character to consume. This character is brought to life after Spongebob is upset that all of his friends are busy on Leif Ericsson Day. This character grabs Squidward’s arm and begins talking after Squidward uses a needle to try and pop this character. For 10 points, name this soapy humanoid friend of Spongebob.
ANSWER: Bubble Buddy

14. This animal is the focus of a story told by Spongebob in which he met this guy who knew this guy, who knew this guy, who knew this guy, and so on. These animals are attracted to bad clarinet playing, and their natural prey is the flashlight. The existence of these animals is espoused in such magazines as The Bikini Bottom Inquirer and Fake Science Monthly. These animals are attracted by clown shoes, hoop skirts, and sombreros worn in goofy fashions, but they are repelled if one stays in a circle drawn in the dirt. An attack by this animal often attracts the deadlier sea rhinoceros. For 10 points, name this animal which attacks Squidward when he goes camping with Spongebob and Patrick.
ANSWER: sea bears (do not accept “bears”)

15. Angry about these objects, Spongebob goes to talk to Patrick, who is equally angry because he cannot see his own forehead. Patrick considers these objects to be a better idea than his inflatable pants. Mr. Krabs is unable to flee from a mob angry about these objects because Spongebob is busy listening to the squeaking sound of two pickles rubbed together. These items are proposed in response to increasing competition from the Shell Shack, which has a talking dog. All 46,853 customers that purchase these objects seek refunds the next day due to side effects such as purple faces and glow-in-the-dark tongues. These objects are mockingly compared to sequin milkshakes and bow-tie French fries, and they come in six different colors. For 10 points, name these colorful varieties of Krabby Patties.
ANSWER: Pretty Patties (or Pretty Patty; prompt on “patties” or “patty”; prompt on “Krabby Patties” or “Krabby Patty”)

16. At one point during this argument, one participant declares that he is not a chicken, but drops his bag of popcorn and eats the kernels off of the ground like a chicken. This debate is preceded by two races – one up a cliff and one to the Krusty Krab – in which the winner gets a head start and yells “I’m already halfway there!” While arguing about this topic, the top of Patrick’s head becomes deflated after he laughs at the word “airhead.” This issue causes Sandy to wear a pickle jar over her head when she fails to hold her breath underwater. At the climax of this debate, Spongebob, Squidward, Patrick, and Mr. Krabs go on land and get chased by two seagulls, which are promptly beaten up by Sandy. For 10 points, identify this issue that would decide the superiority of, say, a dog versus a fish. ANSWER: whether land creatures are better than sea creatures (or vice versa; or obvious equivalents; accept specific traits for “better” such as “faster,” “stronger,” etc.; anti-prompt on “whether sea creatures can survive on land”)

17. Upon first seeing this character, Squidward warns himself not to say anything and to remember his karma, but promptly flies out of his bike, falls off of a cliff, and explodes upon hitting the ground. Squidward cries when he hears a story about this character, but realizes that it’s because there’s a bowl of onions nearby. Two friends think this character is a kiddie ride, but when one of them tries to insert a coin, he is kicked into the distance and explodes upon hitting the ground. On the onset of spring, Spongebob repeatedly tries to plant a flower, but this character eats the flower every time Spongebob turns his back. Patrick nails a plank of wood to his forehead while trying to build a stable for this character. For 10 points, name this seahorse that Spongebob adopts. ANSWER: Mystery (prompt on “seahorse” before “seahorse”)

18. A treasure chest buried in a “Hidey Hole” beneath the dumpster behind the Krusty Krab contains mementos of time spent with this group. Members of this group demand that Spongebob give a speech, but become perplexed when he begins talking about jellyfishing. At a gathering for this group, a Trophy of Manly Toughness is given out. At a reunion for this group, Spongebob pretends to be Mr. Krabs after the latter molts his shell and becomes pink and flabby. Members of this group include Lockjaw Jones, Mutton Chop, Iron Eye, Torpedo Belly, and Iron Abs Krabs. For 10 points, identify these friends of Mr. Krabs during his time in the branch of the military that uses boats. ANSWER: Mr. Krabs’s Navy Buddies (or obvious equivalents that mention friends of Mr. Krabs in the Navy; prompt on “military” before “military”; do not accept other branches such as “army” or “air force”)

19. A plan to retrieve this object involves Spongebob and Patrick dressing up as slices of meats and lathering steak sauce on themselves. The loss of this object causes its owner to be hospitalized, but when his lack of insurance is discovered, a nurse pushes his gurney out into the hallway, then onto the sidewalk, then down a hill. This object is taken to a junkyard where it is protected by a fierce guard worm. When Spongebob, Patrick, and Squidward buy a replacement for this object, its owner falls into a “cash coma” out of shock and is hospitalized. That owner, Mr. Krabs, always has an aching back from using this lumpy object, which contains all of his money. For 10 points, identify this cushy object, the portion of the bed upon which Mr. Krabs sleeps. ANSWER: Mr. Krabs’s mattress (do not accept “bed,” “sheets,” “pillow,” etc.)

20. Two employees of this facility angrily whack a sack of laundry to make it fit into the trunk of a car, and then drive an old woman to this location where she can bake cookies “just like mother used to make.” A visitor to this place orders a Krabby Patty with cheese, toenail clippings, and nose hairs, and then forces its owner to eat it. Employees here are only permitted to use the employee elevator, which is actually just a staircase. Patrick comes here carrying two suitcases filled with rocks. Patrick causes this building to collapse when he jumps into a large indoor pool on its top floor. This place abides by the principle that “we shall never deny a guest even the most ridiculous request.” For 10 points, name this hotel version of the Krusty Krab. ANSWER: Krusty Towers (prompt on “Krusty Krab”; prompt on “hotel”)

21. At a grocery store, this character is asked if it would be better to buy a roll of paper towels that says “Best Paper Towel Around” or one that says “Best Paper Towel in Town.” This character's attempts to be alone with Spongebob are hampered by a surprise party celebrating Spongebob's perfect on-time percentage at work. This character escapes from his bondage by a comically excessive number of chains after the police arrest him for littering. When this character tries to enter Spongebob’s house, Spongebob jumps on his shoulders, but then accidentally inserts his spiky cleats into this character’s eye sockets. For 10 points, name this character who, as his name suggests, tries to violently squeeze Spongebob’s neck. ANSWER: the Tattletale Strangler (prompt on “Spongebob’s bodyguard”)

22. Two brothers that hear about this quest mockingly take off their hats “in respect for the dead.” A group of singing monsters encountered during this mission grumble and walk away after being called “hideous, disgusting monsters.” A detour in this journey allows a creepy old woman to sell Spongebob a bowl of ice cream that sticks to his hands. Spongebob and Patrick gain enthusiasm about this quest after receiving seaweed mustaches. Later, they return home from this adventure on the back of David Hasselhoff. King Neptune turns Mr. Krabs into ice until this mission is complete. For 10 points, identify this quest that sees Spongebob and Patrick travel to Shell City to retrieve a royal accessory.

ANSWER: retrieving King Neptune’s crown (prompt on anything about “Shell City” until “Shell City”)

23. After Spongebob finishes telling a story about this issue, a woman listening notes that she’s borrowing her friend’s clothes while hers is at the cleaners. While digging around in a dumpster, Patrick is able to solve this issue, but forgets the solution every time Spongebob turns around to face him. During an attempt to solve this problem, Patrick accidentally greets Spongebob by calling him “Spongeboob” instead. When Squidward says that the solution to this dilemma is to “retrace your steps,” Spongebob repeats the events of that morning, which involve cringing from eating Gary’s Snail-Po. This issue is resolved after Spongebob realizes that he’s wearing his clothes backwards. For 10 points, identify this issue which arises when Spongebob thinks that he has lost his nametag.

ANSWER: Spongebob losing his identity (or Spongebob losing his nametag before “nametag”; or Spongebob putting his clothes on backwards before “backwards”)

24. While Spongebob is preparing for this event, Sandy suddenly decides to kick Spongebob’s butt the next day, and then shows up after this event concludes and kicks Spongebob’s butt. During practice sessions for this event, a participant wanders off to watch TV. This event’s winner is given a trophy made out to “Squidward Tortellini.” The torch runner at the start of this event moves so slowly that after two hours he’s not even a quarter of the way there. Its first victor was “Lightning” Larry Luciano. During this event, Participant #7 blows out both of his eyes, crashes into a wall, and explodes, but is healed after falling in love with Participant #6. This event is won by Patrick’s rock, Rocky. For 10 points, name this competition whose participants include Gary and Squidward’s purebred Snellie.

ANSWER: The Bikini Bottom Snail Race (or the Great Snail Race; prompt on “race”)

25. After believing this hypothesis to be confirmed, Spongebob alerts the navy but panics and hangs up when he hears its automated phone service. To test for this theory, Spongebob fibs that Squidward’s father never hugged him as a child. This belief causes Squidward to take a baseball bat and smash various kitchen appliances like a blender and a toaster. A test for this conjecture involves telling the following joke: Why couldn’t the eleven year old get into the pirate movie? It was rated R. This belief is supported by the sight of its subject holding metal pinchers and having swollen red eyes from spilling salt on them. For 10 points, identify this hypothesis that is formulated when Spongebob sees his boss dance to a new techno song on the radio and make beeping noises on the phone.

ANSWER: Mr. Krabs is a robot (or obvious equivalents)

26. In order to continue this task, Spongebob dances in the middle of the road to attract a truck, but the truck driver just honks his horn and keeps driving. When Spongebob tries to start a car in order to begin this assignment, he looks down at the gear shift and sees that its labels are in Korean. The duo responsible for this job use pioneering tricks like eating coral and looking at a moss-covered rock to locate civilization. This task is completed when Spongebob drives a large rock to the destination, and then backs up the rock, revealing that their destination was literally right across the street from the Krusty Krab. This job is initially refused because it didn’t come with a drink. For 10 points, identify this job which ends with a hungry customer receiving a flat, round food of Italian origin.

ANSWER: delivering pizza (or obvious equivalents)

27. This character asks if a customer will order a sofa, an expensive haircut, or a Krabby Patty. Under the guidance of this character, Squidward suggests that Patrick order a Krabby Patty, but begins banging his head against the cash register after asking if it is for here or to go. This character grows increasingly out-of-breath as he sings a fanfare over an image of a Krabby Patty that grows in size at an extremely slow rate. Patrick thinks that this character is actually the Krusty Krab’s ceiling. This character introduces the principle of “People Order Our Patties,” or “POOP.” This character’s attempts to say “Sounds like a lot of” are interrupted by a voice shouting “Hoopla!” For 10 points, identify this character that instructs Spongebob in the Krusty Krab Training Video.

ANSWER: the narrator of the Krusty Krab Training Video (or obvious equivalents; or narrator after “Krusty Krab Training Video”; prompt on “ceiling” before “ceiling”)

28. A character that sees this group gathered together initially mistakes them for a field of grass. Its members agree to work together after they are promised as much root beer as they can drink. After the leader of this group reads a secret from a book, every member of this group runs away screaming except for Clem, who stays behind because he cannot read. This group begins laughing uncontrollably when their leader's first name is displayed on a screen behind him by his wife. This collective organizes itself into a large human hand and ear in order to crack a safe that contains the Krabby Patty secret formula, but runs away after realizing that they are one of the ingredients. For 10 points, identify this group of hillbilly microorganisms gathered by Mr. Krabs's rival.

ANSWER: Plankton's family (or obvious equivalents)

29. A character on his way to report this type of action tries to go faster by hitching a ride on an ice cream truck, but the ice cream truck takes a turn in a different direction. A perpetrator of this action imagines that the punishment for this action is having forty eyelashes. An instance of this action turns out to just be Old Man Jenkins in his jalopy. Spongebob commits this action after he loses at the game Eels and Escalators; earlier he does it while reading graffiti that begins "Krabs is a." According to Squidward, there are seven ways of doing this, though Mr. Krabs explains that there are thirteen if one is a sailor. Sounds such as a seagull's squawk and a dolphin's whistle are used to censor this type of action. For 10 points, identify this action which consists of an obscene utterance.

ANSWER: profanity (or obvious equivalents)

30. Before Spongebob reads a message from this group, he is given a piece of paper and says "Hey! A note!" because it has a large musical note printed on it. Discussion of this group prompts the confused question "Uh, but don't genius live in a lamp?" Patrick realizes that two similar characters are not this group when they reveal their names to be Janet and Marty; during an angry conversation away from those two fakes, Patrick remarks that "dumb people are always blissfully unaware of how dumb they really are." Patrick plans to impress this pair when they visit by having Spongebob act incredibly stupid in comparison. For 10 points, identify this duo that raised Patrick.

ANSWER: Patrick's parents (or obvious equivalents; accept parents after "Patrick")

31. Squidward's house leans its head in to eavesdrop on a conversation about the burden of maintaining one of these objects. Squidward uses a new television to watch a boxing match in which the competitors are these items. A discussion about one of these objects prompts Patrick to imagine a carton of milk spilling and declare that "the inner machinations of my mind are an enigma." Squidward ends up in a junkyard after he uses one of these items to pretend that he is driving a racecar. Another of these objects has a secret compartment that contains an embarrassing snapshot of Spongebob at that Christmas party. For 10 points, name these objects, one of which is a secret one possessed by Patrick, the other a vehicle for Spongebob and Patrick's imagination.

ANSWER: boxes (accept secret box; accept imagination box; accept Idiot Box)

32. The victim of this condition denies that he is suffering from it when he sees a crowd of people standing in line for ice cream and thinks that they're in line to enter a cemetery. Its victim tries to cure this sensation by watching clothes get washed at a laundromat called the Wash. A group dedicated to curing this feeling travels on the Underwater Heartbreaker. Throughout several attempts to cure this sensation, Spongebob repeatedly asks "Are you feeling it now, Mr. Krabs?" Efforts to cure this condition climax with Mr. Krabs going on a panty raid with Spongebob and Patrick. For 10 points, identify this condition, the opposite of being young.

ANSWER: Mr. Krabs's oldness (or Mr. Krabs's mid-life crisis; or obvious equivalents)

Two answers required.

33. One of these characters spends so much time at the other's house that the old narrator got tired of waiting and they had to hire a new one. A race between these two characters climaxes with both of them crawling, one with an anchor chained to his back and the other a large ship. One of them thinks the other is the toilet behind his bathroom curtain. A crowd tramples all over one of these characters after the other advertises a nearby "funfair." One of them repeatedly asks the other if he's done with those errands yet. These two characters watch the sunset together with nothing but a brick wall between them. They gift each other a sweater made of eyelashes and a sweater made of tears in exchange for a pie that turns out to be a bomb. For 10 points, name these two employees of the Krusty Krab.

ANSWER: Spongebob Squarepants and Squidward Tentacles (accept in any order)

34. This character is tortured after he incorrectly guesses “62” as the number between 1 and 100 that his interrogator is thinking of. He removes his own head and gives it to Spongebob and Patrick after purchasing a checkbook with little poodles on them. Patrick repeatedly drops a heavy box on this character’s foot while this character tries to ask if Patrick he needs any help. Earlier, this character tries to give Patrick back his wallet, but Patrick insists that it isn’t his. After this character says the word “Please,” he is freed from the tickle belt used by Spongebob and Patrick in order to teach him to be good. For 10 points, name this character who, along with the Dirty Bubble, is the archenemy of Mermaid Man and Barnacle Boy.

ANSWER: Man Ray

35. Spongebob gains the ability to be with these creatures when he unintentionally inflates his pants by putting a hair dryer inside them. One of these animals tackles a cave until Spongebob comes out and blows a bubble in the shape of a slice of pie. Gary is able to control a swarm of these animals by clicking his eyes together. A blue one called No Name captures Spongebob and shows him a factory where Mr. Krabs abuses these animals to make Krabby Patties. Spongebob tries to live with these animals but just ends up in a cave filled with poison sea urchins. These animals are the main interest of a club of anchovies led by a sea cucumber named Kevin. Patrick tells Squidward to “firmly grasp” the tool used to catch these animals. For 10 points, name these cnidarians.

ANSWER: jellyfishes

Two answers required.

36. One of these characters tries to stop the other from visiting by lathering his friend’s foot with sea-nut butter and covering it with two slices of bread. One of these characters is attacked by chocolate-eating scallops while piloting a hot air balloon to give as a gift for the other. These two characters are forsaken in place of Potato Chip, Penny, and Used Napkin. These two characters are tossed into a sack by a gorilla after one of them puts on a gorilla suit and pretends to attack the other. One of these characters uses the lint in his bellybutton to create a pair of earmuffs so that the other doesn’t wake up. When Spongebob is sick with the suds, these two characters argue over his treatment. For 10 points, name these two friends of Spongebob who occupy opposite ends of the intelligence spectrum.

ANSWER: Patrick Star and Sandy Cheeks

37. An employee of this place states that he chose to work here because he thought the Corps would help him straighten out his life. A patron of this establishment is forced to state that its owner does not suck eggs. An employee at this facility asks if acting in a “dignified and sophisticated manner” means acting “like a weenie.” After this place is destroyed, Mr. Krabs plays a sad song on the world’s smallest violin. Upon first entering this location, visitors are so shocked that they begin mumbling “hamana hamana hamana” repeatedly. This establishment is destroyed when a waiter does not know his own name, having emptied his mind of everything except fine dining and breathing. For 10 points, identify this place fabricated by Squidward in an attempt to impress Squilliam.

ANSWER: Squidward’s fancy five-star restaurant version of the Krusty Krab (or obvious equivalents; prompt on “Krusty Krab”; prompt on anything about “restaurants” that doesn’t include “Squidward”)

38. A person at this event declares “It’s not over yet!” but is angrily told in response “That’s what you think, but it’s not over yet!” Another person shows up to this event strapped to the back of a huge, muscular purple guy that’s so big that he destroys the stadium corridor when he walks through it. A participant in this event rips off his green robe to reveal a blue business suit underneath, and then rips that off to reveal a very muscular body. Near the end of this event, Spongebob erases part of Patrick’s name tag, causing him to yell “My name’s not Rick!” This event includes games such as Bun Wrestling, the Deep Fry Pole Vault, and the Chocolate High Dive. For 10 points, name this competition whose participants are the employees at various fast food eateries.

ANSWER: The Fry Cook Games

39. When a character at this place angrily tells his companion to “let him have it,” his companion happily says “You can have it!” During a contest at this location, an anchor falling from the sky follows around a referee as he vainly tries to run away from it. Spongebob is unable to leave a building in this place when a heavy glass is placed on his hand. A visitor here is crying because he bought two ice cream cones but only needed one. Spongebob’s Anchor Arms deflate during a contest here. This planned site of the Chum Bucket Mega Bucket sees all of its visitors go home when Plankton teaches Spongebob to be assertive. Spongebob annoys visitors at this locale by ripping his pants. For 10 points, name this beach in Bikini Bottom.

ANSWER: Goo Lagoon

40. To conceal the existence of this character, two guests are told that it's Open Cash Register Night and are offered all the money in the cash register, and then later told that ice is just a myth and doesn't actually exist. Two police officers assault this character with an anchor and a barrel because they think he's a zombie. A news report convinces Mr. Krabs that this character is a fraud, so he is given a Krabby Patty that's been dropped in the toilet, dried with gym socks, and prepared with volcano sauce and seahorse radish. For 10 points, identify this official who eats the Nasty Pasty while evaluating the quality and conditions at the Krusty Krab.

ANSWER: the health inspector (or obvious equivalents)

41. A member of this group buys an ice cream cone that explodes and blows a hole right through him. Two characters dressed up as this group place a tent around Squidward to keep him from suntanning with his reflector. Spongebob passes out in his house until these people arrive to open a jar of mayonnaise. According to Patrick, a member of this group owns an item that can be set to either "mini" or "wumbo." One member of this pair betrays the other after being bought a Pipsqueak Patty instead of a regular Krabby Patty. This duo rides in the Invisible Boatmobile. They become so annoyed by Spongebob and Patrick that they are brought out of retirement at the Shady Shoals Rest Home. For 10 points, name these old superheroes.

ANSWER: Mermaid Man and Barnacle Boy

42. This action is used to injure Dennis when he and Spongebob are fighting atop David Hasselhoff's leg. To determine who participated in this activity, a group of people are put in a line and forced to listen to the Goofy Goober theme song until one of them sings along. The technique for doing this activity begins with these instructions: first you go like this, spin around, stop, double-take three times, pelvic thrust, stop on your right foot - don't forget it! The end product of this activity names a character that hides pickles under his tongue while eating a Krabby Patty. A two-handed variety of this technique is employed to create an elephant, which Patrick thinks is a giraffe. For 10 points, name this activity which produces spherical globules of air shielded by layers of soapy water.

ANSWER: blowing bubbles (or obvious equivalents; accept Bubble Bass)

43. When someone picks up a handful of soil at this place, the soil angrily says "Would you mind putting me down?" That character misses several attempts at leaving this location while trying to purchase a Kelp Nougat Crunch from the candy machine across the street. Escape from this place is made possible when a friendly anglerfish blows enough air into a balloon for it to float on up. After the lights go out in this place, Spongebob remarks, "This isn't your average everyday darkness; this is... advanced darkness." Spongebob unwittingly ends up at this place after taking the wrong bus home from Glove World, and discovers that its residents talk by blowing raspberries between their words. For 10 points, name this spooky town that neighbors Bikini Bottom.

ANSWER: Rock Bottom

44. This character compares employment under him to the mind-numbing repetitiveness of daytime television. This character is emotionally moved by a video that consists entirely of creepy people chanting "the power within." Two friends try to imitate this character by spinning around and around until they suddenly become ice skaters. Two prisoners try to run away from this character by stealing his dining sock and fleeing through the perfume department. This character's howls are imitated by Patrick obnoxiously yelling "LEEDLE LEEDLE LEEDLE." This character's vehicle is torn to shreds as Patrick drives it through jagged rocks, but Spongebob reassures him, "You're good, you're good!" For 10 points, name this spooky ghost pirate.

ANSWER: the Flying Dutchman
